Succession Planning - You've put in a lot of effort to grow your business from start up to success story. But what happens when you step aside? Succession planning is a critical part of the future success for any business. It's essential not to leave your succession plan until you're considering retirement. You need to be prepared for anything and that means developing a succession plan now, so it'll be there when you need it most. Learn financial strategies with TD Business Banking.

How up to speed are you and your team on tax laws? How “Veterinary centric” is your accountant? - Virtually everything you as a business owner / manager does has tax implications. Every year tax laws and interpretations change and become more complex, that is why it is important to take the time to fully understand your business. More and more clinics are being challenged to comply with collecting & remitting the proper GST / PST amounts. Will your selected financial firm have the knowledge to combat the Canadian Corporate Tax laws to benefit your practice.

Forensics & Theft - by default when you have people you have potential problems. Employees may seem honest and stable during the hours of work but who are they really? What potential hazards can they bring your practice and how much financial scars can they leave before you realize they've taken from you. Let's face it, you have drugs in your practice, the temptation for some is too much. Drug diversion, product re-selling and cash on hand are all realities at your clinic, learn to take steps on how to limit your risk and know what the signs are before it's too late.

Cybersecurity - The majority of veterinary practices do not have a strong understanding of what their cyber security posture is, nor the actual threats they should care about. We will cover topics such as:

- evaluating high risk areas
- determining value of security controls
- focused allocation of budget and resources
- Importance of educating and training employees
